Charities Campaign Starts Well Uses Weird Stunts for Good Cause

By PAUL BETTS

All the astounded people who had to pay their five cents admission to the Union today are convinced—the hard way—that the Charities Campaign Committee will really stop at nothing to bring the drive before the students. From now on they will be prepared for anything and everything in the way of stunts, gags, and publicity. Other students would be well advised to be prepared, too, or they will have to learn the hard way also.

Besides bringing the Campaign to the fore, the admission charge brought in a not inconsiderable amount of small change. It will all go to augment McGill's contribution to the many agencies benefiting from this, the only appeal of the year. In order that the same people (those who spend most of their time in the Grill Room) will not be asked to bear the brunt of the contributions, the admission charge will not be continued on Thursday and Friday, as previously decided. Other forms of extortion will be used.

On Friday, there will be a Noon Dance in the Union. There will be a slight nominal admission charge of 10 cents per person, and the dance will last from 12 until 2. Music will be provided by "the nation's greatest bands"—i.e., a juke-box. The affair is, of course, on the usual "stag or drag" basis. No one will be turned away; there will be no unsuccessful candidates for admission. In addition, checking in the Union today and Friday will be at the rate of five cents per coat. Don't take a chance on losing your winter overcoat, check it at the Union, and swell the Charities contribution by a nickel.

While all these money-making ideas are instituted and should be accepted as gags and stunts, there is a very serious purpose underlying them. It is a fact that the Charities which benefit from this Campaign are vitally in need of funds in order that they may carry on their good work; it is a fact that McGill can contribute in a very large way to the successful working of these Charities. No contribution is too small; no contribution can be too large. Remember that your dimes and nickles will help, but that only when we have the maximum contribution of every McGill student will McGill have had a successful campaign.

"Springsong" Presented by Choral Society

On March 20 and 21 the Choral Society will present "Springsong" in Moysie Hall, its concluding performance for the academic year. Culminating 2½ months of extensive practice, the programme represents the most advanced work attempted by the choir since director Mitchell took over the group two years ago.

Pursuing the idea that a concert should have some general motif as a basis for expression, the programme has been selected to illustrate the twin themes of beauty and romance inspired, traditionally, by the coming of spring. Opening the programme will be three songs written as a tribute to spring: "Spring Comes Laughing"—Bach, "Last Spring"—Grieg and "Spring Song"—Pinsuti reflect the German, Norwegian and Italian reaction to the mood. Romantic reflections are introduced with "I Loved A Lass"—Dyson, "Rolling Down To Rio"—German and "Madame Jeanette" by Murray, illustrating love, adventure and tragedy in contrasting rhythm and tone. Beauty is seen through "Whispering Voices" the tone poem of Georges Bizet, "The Little Red Lark"—arranged by Godfrey, "To Music"—Felton, and the magnificent "Blest Pair of Sirens" Parry's musical setting of Milton's

Staff Builds New Stage for 'Dear Ruth'

Up in the attic of the Union the hardworking scenery hands of the Players Club are painting sets in order to have the setting ready for the opening night of their play "Dear Ruth" on March 12th. The club was unable to obtain Moysie Hall this year as they have done in the past, and so after much thought and consideration of the difficulties which would have to be overcome, they decided upon the Ballroom of the Union.

A whole new stage has had to be constructed and it was necessary to borrow curtains and lighting as the Ballroom has none of these facilities. The property manager, Sheila Elder, has had great difficulty finding some of the necessary "props," such as a Panda bear, spring flowers in March and enormous quantities of cracker jack.

In spite of the difficulties however, the club's executive is now able to look forward to the production of their play with a great deal of confidence.

"At a Solemn Music," the major opus of the programme.

The Choral Society has been practically the only campus organization for undergraduate extracurricular singing since the dissolution of the Glee Club in 1943.

C.C.F. Bill Upheld Amendments Lost

Last night, the Model Parliament heavily sustained the CCF Government in its resolution for Socialized Medicine in Canada by a vote of 103 to 41. The Progressive-Conservative and LPP amendments were defeated by votes of 90 to 40, and a voice vote, respectively. Support for the CCF resolution came from all sections of the house, with the exception of the Progressive Conservative opposition, the LPP, most of the independents, and some of the Liberals, all joining in sustaining the government.

Interested students from Dawson, of all parties, were brought by bus to join in this, the last session of the year. At the end, by unanimous vote, members joined in thanks to Professor Mallory for his services as Speaker during the year.

The CCF Government stressed the necessity for an all-embracing positive national programme, pointing out the inadequacy of the Progressive-Conservative proposals on the one hand, and the coercive nature of those of the LPP on the other. Members from all sections of the House, with the exception of the Progressive-Conservative bench, joined in support of the resolution.

The Progressive-Conservative opposition maintained that maximum health benefits could be attained by contributory and voluntary methods without regimentation. State participation in organizing health security should both stifle incentive and opportunity. Preventive health measures should be expanded, it was held. The leading speakers from the official opposition were Sherwin Raymond, Bob Walker, Roy Jackson and William Archer.

The Liberal Party supported some scheme of national health service, but within the party there was division as to whether the most desirable plan was that put forward by the CCF Government, or the alternative proposal of the Progressive-Conservative opposition. Liberal speakers and members were almost equally divided on the bill. Only on the LPP amendment was there unanimity, Liberals voting solidly against it.

The L.P.P. supported the C.C.F. bill but felt it did not include enough. We felt that pharmaceutical houses be formed into Crown Companies that provisions be made that those specialists who support the present medical set up not be allowed to disrupt the practical work of the Health Scheme.

Calling All Co-eds

The boys out at Dawson have asked that at least 200 coeds from the McGill Campus attend their Athletic Night, this evening at Dawson. To date only about 100 girls have signified their intention of accepting this invitation.

In the past McGill women have often been accused of lacking campus spirit, so let us show that we have what it takes, and will help make the Dawson affair a big success. There will be plenty men on hand to welcome the coeds, and see that they enjoy themselves.

So come on girls—buy your tickets in Arts Building or RVC at 50 cents per person, which includes cost of transportation, games, dance, and refreshments, and be on hand when buses leave the Roddick Gates at about 7 p.m. today.

S.E.C. STATEMENT

In a meeting last night, the Students' Executive Council thanked Leon Davicho for his work in organizing the Yugoslav trip. The council states that the group going is representative, but is not empowered to speak for the SEC or for the Students' Society.

Interna. Relations Popular UBC Course

The course will consist of lecture and discussion periods. Documentary films will be used extensively. Three-hour sessions will be held in the mornings from Monday through Friday each week.

Chairman Asks For Greater Student Effort

Following a meeting of the Charity Campaign last night, Bob Mackay, chairman of the committee, issued the following statement:

"The committee has done a great deal to rouse the interest of students in the campaign, and further publicity stunts are planned. The purpose of these measures is to try to make students realize that the appeal is really earnest and that everyone's support is essential. These attempts are useless if there is not an inherent will to give, to help those who are far less fortunate than ourselves, to do our part as citizens of Canada and the world.

"Our appeal is for six organizations. Our contributions seem small when divided by six, even smaller when divided by the number of days in the year, for $2 is scarcely more than 1/2 a cent a day. Yet these small donations can add up to an impressive total if we all do our share.

"Returns to date have not been impressive. To make the drive a success 100 per cent. participation of the students is not only necessary but essential. May I therefore urge all canvassers to do their utmost to contact every student on their lists, and urge one and all to put their whole heart into our one Annual Campaign.

VETERAN INTERVIEWS

Mr. E. C. Knowles will interview student veterans in Room 15 of the Arts Building on Tuesday and Thursday, March 4th and 6th. Hours: 9.45-12.30-2.00-5.00.

Through the week the office will remain open as usual.

Flying Falcon

One of the veteran gliders in the McGill University Gliding Club is the Falcon I, shown above, with the instructor connecting the launching cable at the nose and the student pilot ready for flight. To learn the art of soaring is the ambition of every gliding enthusiast, then he can fly high performance sailplanes like the one above and keep them aloft in rising air currents for hours on end. The members of the McGill Gliding Club missed last year's soaring season because they were not fully trained, but this year they are to catch the first thermal in the Falcon sailplane. New members should be ready for soaring flight by early summer.

On March 17, at the first meeting of the club, movies on gliding will be shown and in this way the organization of the club and the mysteries and pleasures of gliding in general will be explained.

Michael Buhay, L.P.P. To Talk in Ballroom

Councillor Michael Buhay, L.P.P. candidate for Carlier, will speak at an open meeting in the Union Ballroom on Friday at 5 p.m. The topic for discussion is, "Carlier—an Historic By-Election."

The McGill L.P.P. Club announces that Mrs. Doris Nielsen, former M.P. from North Battleford, will also be present. She will give a short talk and then will introduce Mr. Buhay.

Mr. Buhay will explain the significance of this by-election, and will answer questions concerning his platform.

Club spokesmen said that Mr. Buhay's record indicated that he is a consistent fighter for the people's needs. As councillor he was one of the first to organize the fight for low-cost housing. At present he has taken up the fight for a subway for Montreal.

See You at Dawson Tonight

Pictured above is the group of musicians known around these parts as THE WESTERNAIRES. Tonight the band is all set to give out with their well liked renditions at Dawson's eighth installment of the combined sports and social evening, McGill's own original Athletics Night. Please have been expressed to McGill coeds to hear and answer the Dawsonites call for the one commodity that campus lacks, femininity.

According to reports from the St. Johns suburb, the locals have really put their best to the task of preparing a first class NITE, having engaged the Westernaires, and planned to show off their starry basketball team to the merry-makers as well as planning many side shows of floor hockey, table tennis and gymnastics. For the coeds who plan to make the boys at Dawson happy, tickets at 50c apiece are now on sale in the common rooms.

-And New Champion

There is cause for rejoicing on the campus and cause, too, for sober thought, in the wake of the election returns of yesterday's balloting. The cause for rejoicing comes from the cheering fact that seldom, if ever, has there been such an enthusiastic outpouring of students to the polls. It was obvious that the elections were being hotly contested and that the fever had spread from the candidates and their immediate backers to the rest of the campus. The platforms of the candidates for the Presidency of the Students' Society were well rounded and worded to catch the interest of the passing man-on-the-campus. As a result the mass of students were moved from their usual lethargy to cast their vote and to decide on the path for the coming year. The weighting of the ballots leaves little doubt as to the general feeling on the campus of the way in which students want to see things done.

Yet we feel that there can be an effort on the part of the winning candidates to spend some time in the sober thought we mentioned above. There is little doubt that Mr. Ballon has a definite mandate to follow through with his program as outlined in his platform. The same goes for Mr. Gill and Miss Walmsley. Now they will have to face the hardest part of their programs—in attempting to vary the emphasis on some points at the expense of others for the overall good of the campus as a whole. From their past activities it appears that all three have the foresight and the proper judgment to ascertain where the best changes can be made for the good of the greatest number. They must at all times remember that there will be some in opposition who must be heard—that without opposition there can be no true perspective for any progress made. It may be pointed out as well, to Mr. Ballon in particular as President of the Society, that his position involves custom and tradition which background. Yet it is expected by our graduates' are not always easy to follow nor clear in their body, with which we have close ties as well as by the Faculty with which we must have harmonious relations if a proper understanding between student and staff is to be retained, that such tradition and custom be continued. There are other matters as well which must be kept in mind, but all of which will become second nature to the new President.

Let these thoughts not be misconstrued. They are in the nature of a forewarning lest they be overlooked only to return on less fortunate occasions.

Finally, the best wishes of the student body may well be carried in this column to Mr. Ballon and to the rest of the victorious candidates. May we further extend the hope that the coming year will bring good luck and progress to the campus.—A.K.

Walk to the Paradise Gardens

After Delius by K.C.

If I should let go of this silken hand
The world would crumble by my ears
The rocks would open and engulf
And throw me to the lions' mouths;
I don't know what would happen if
I once let slip this blessed hand.
Alone I would be left to face
A world bent on destroying me. This hand
Is all my life and all I want
This hand is heaven, hope and everything
Fair, good, courageous, this fine hand.

If I should, let go of this hand
So strong, so rough, so kind.
If this hand fall me, then I might
As well lay down my head and cry
And never rise again, and try to sleep
And then I must only forget and shroud my head.
For this hand is my life, my love
My everything. This hand so kind
And good, and rough, is silken when
It touches me, and even blows
From this one hand... hurt not.

Come now, my love, tread careful on the grass
Step round the flowers, care you do not break
One colored head. There must not be
One touch of cruelty and wantonness to spoil
The purity, the magic of this wondrous thing
This thing called Love, this Spring of heart
This feeling that we are now one whole, and one
United stands above all others in the world
Slowly we walk, slowly and hand in hand
The path winds and we with it wind and turn
Through beauty such as never was, through scents
And sights and sounds we'll never forget.
Slowly the path turns and the gardens come—
This moment is for you—we say and turn to face
Each other—one from the other gift
Of sunshine, grass, flowers and dew.

Here are the Gardens, here the tryst
Here England, in a garden that was made
By Tudor hands, square, rose filled, delicate Bearing the noble grace of centuries of men
—Englishmen, love, such as you and I.
—This hour will live for ever.—And how long
Is Ever?—It is now, this moment has become Eternity—Come let us kiss...

The Rake's Progress
By Mulligan

The Owl fled early from Economics 77, and repaired to the noisome depths of the Arts locker-room, where he had concealed his latest batch of Rumble-stitz-stein—an horrendous brew he had discovered through close perusal of an ancient Persian cuneiform he had once come across in the Metropolitan Museum. The reader may inquire just how the Owl ever acquired a working knowledge of Sanskrit, especially the 3000 B.C. variety, but when he stops to consider the faded thoughts; the abnormal curiosity; and the bottomless thirst of Mr. Long-whistle, he will readily understand how the aforesaid party managed to decipher the language.

"It was all very simple", the Owl explained to us patronizingly, gingerly removing the cork. "Line one, showed a Babylonian King snapping his fingers for service; line two showed a couple of flunkies moseying around looking for a funny-looking plant, with three stems and a four-starred flower; and line three showed everyone lying around sozzled. 'Naturally', he concluded, 'all I had to do was to locate a similar flower, which, I may proudly state, I have succeeded in doing!'"

At that moment, Bacchus Flushbetter, the notorious Engineer, came skulking into the locker-room, looking as usual for half-smoked butts thrown away by prosperous young Artsmen. The Owl, with a knowing wink, condescended to address him. "I say, Flushbetter," he hooted, a baleful gleam behind his thick-lensed spectacles. "Would you care for a drink?"

This was too much for Bacchus. In a short, terse, phrase, he requested the Owl to perform an impossible feat.

"... and you, too!", retorted the Owl civilly. "If you do not care for a snort of Rumble-stitz-stein, may the pox assail you, and cirrhosis gnaw your entrails!" At that, he closed his locker, carefully seeing that it was left slightly ajar. "I am leaving my supply down here," he announced loudly. "Don't let me catch any of you cads dipping into it either!"

As soon as we left the room, the Owl stopped us and led us to a vantage point in the storage-cupboards, where a ventilation grill opened over the lockers next door. Sure enough, Flushbetter, in true Plumber fashion, immediately sneaked over to the Owl's half-closed locker and proceeded to gulp down a large part of the flagon left there by the wily Hibou. Suddenly, he stopped, and a dreadful shade of purple suffused his blotchy countenance.

"Help!", he screeched. "I have been poisoned! Call the Fire Department! Get me a stomach-pump! Yaaaaaah!" At that he ran shrieking up through English 13; through English 1 like a dose of salt; and out the door of Moyse Hall, flames belching from his twisted mouth.

"Served him right!", observed the Owl, piously removing the remains of his turpentine and javel-water mixture, and replacing his jug of Rumble-stitz-stein in the locker. "If there is anything I resent, it is these common pick-thieves that you find around the Main and in Engineering Buildings. A gentleman can't even leave his liquor around without some churl of a plumber ferreting it out and walking off with it." At that, he picked up his copy of the "Racing Form", and rocked off in the general direction of Peel street.

A. J. FRISCH
A beggar on a lonely lane,
Counting his coins with trembling hands,
Saw suddenly the rays of gold
The evening-sun so freely spends
And thought they mocked his sorry gain.

He stopped before he staggered on,
Then smiled, and dropped them one by one.
The coins together with the sun's
Soft gold, into his shabby purse.

le quartier latin...

... a students' newspaper of French language by francois langlois

You probably have heard of "Le Quartier Latin" by now. In case you have not, let me tell you that it is the official organ of University of Montreal. Well, what is University of Montreal? Everybody who comes to Montreal may see at once its buildings, magnificent if you want to know, and situated on top of Montreal's mountain: the Mount-Royal. University of Montreal happens to be the highest cultural institution for Canadians of French language. It has a certain renown, and maybe deserves it.

So, if you are curious about "Le Quartier Latin" and want to know more about its history, special features, administration, etc., just don't drop the article at this point. I will try to be as explicit as possible so you will get a clear picture of what it is all about.

First of all, let me stress the striking difference one can but notice between students' newspapers of English and French language. The English paper has most of its pages consecrated to news. It resembles more the daily paper everyone reads, in its presentation and contents than anything else. With, of course, predominance given to students' news and matters of importance to the University. The French paper does not use the same formula. It gives less importance to news and problems of actual acuteness. It has a more serene outlook and takes more time in formulating answers to these problems or in taking position. Both manners have advantages. I will not decide which one is the best.

"Le Quartier Latin" is published twice a week: Tuesday and Friday. Each number is usually printed on light pages, sometimes 12 or 16 pages. The first one contains the leading article which is most of the time a discussion on a current problem, often a declaration of principles. At the bottom of the page, a cartoon, which usually draws belly laughs from nearly everybody. Our good friend, Jacques Gagnier, is responsible for them. Jacques, though a non-student, has contributed, for an indefinite number of years, to the traditional humor of "Le Quartier Latin". His witty and sometimes malicious drawings are known all over Canada. So we were told.

Page two, you will find the news. There are not too many. And it is always a surprise to us. It is probably due to the fact that we are not a daily. News have a tendency to get stale if kept too long in desks drawers.

On page three, four and five you are liable to read articles of quite an heterogeneous nature: musical, theatrical and cinema critics; poetry; short stories; informations of scientific interest; polemics, etc.

Page six and seven are reserved to sports, to the triumphant trumpets of successes, or dispirited and gloomy reports of failures.

Page eight will discuss economics or problems of specific social nature.

This order, though, is not rigorous. Sometimes circumstances will alter the ordinary routine and we will have a paper altogether different. For those who like changes it is always an "aubaine".

I would like to mention a monthly feature that has its fervent adepts and is quite a tradition with "Le Quartier Latin". It is called "La teste bien faite" which is an old French expression often used by "le bon Montaigne". Questions of a strictly literary order are discussed here. And it is quite serious, believe me. The Existentialism, recently, received its fair share of attacks and criticisms. Partisans of French culture like discussions of general ideas. They like to see clearly and act reasonably. They do not always do.

And now for the background of "Le Quartier Latin". Our true ancestor was "L'Escholler" who was first published in 1898. It stayed only a year. Then "Le Quartier Latin" appeared in 1912. For two years it had difficulties in meeting both ends. And the beginning of The First Great War saw its disappearance. It resumed publication in 1918, sustaining itself by subscriptions and advertising up to 1921. In 1921, it became the official journal of the Students Association. There was a change in staff each year. No continuity at all. In 1940, a manager is nominated whose functions are to see in the financial matters and principally in securing funds by advertising etc. This manager is at the same time administrator of the Students Association and his nomination is of a permanent nature.

rector is delegated to the Students Association.

The circulation was low at beginning. It is now of the order of 4200 subscribers of which 2500 are students. The rest belongs to different parts of the world: France, South-America, Italy and in general all Europe.

"Le Quartier Latin" is published on a column of 13 cms with a page of 4 columns, large size paper folded in two.

Our future plans? Well, we hope next year to appear in tabloid form and rumor says that we might become a daily. Who knows? Meanwhile we will stick to our slogan: "Bien faire et laisser brairé". It pays dividends.

little symphony in charming concert

Mr. Bernard Naylor must be congratulated upon the excellence of the programme of this week's concert of the Little Symphony given at L'Ermilage on Tuesday evening. So delicate and restrained were the renditions of works by Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven that one could easily have imagined oneself in a Viennese Salon listening to the orchestra under the baton of the composer himself.

The Overture to Armida by Haydn which opened the programme was beautifully interpreted, and it is always a particular delight to hear this composer's music played by a small orchestra for which it was originally intended.

Then followed the Concerto No. 9 in E flat for Piano and Orchestra by Mozart with Miss Doris Killam as soloist. Both Miss Killam and the Orchestra lacked confidence in the first movement, the Allegro, but under Mr. Naylor's patient guidance the Concerto developed until Miss Killam was playing confidently and capably with that delicacy so necessary to the rendering of Mozart.

The Contredances Nos. 7-12 of Beethoven commenced the second half of the programme. These are among his lesser-known works and one cannot help feeling regret that they are quite charming. Special thanks are therefore due to Mr. Naylor for this performance which was most excellent.

The programme concluded with the Symphony No. 40 in G minor by Mozart in which the discipline of the strings was superb, while the remainder of the orchestra acquitted itself nobly.

It is unfortunate that more time could not have been devoted to rehearsal. The close of some of the movements was marked by a dissident violin which never quite succeeded in maintaining the time set by the leader. Nevertheless, it remained a delightful evening.

Mardi Gras Proceeds Donated to Europe

The French Society announces with pleasure that approximately $250 the proceeds of its Mardi Gras costume ball, has been turned over to the Save the Children Fund. Special thanks are extended to the patrons, many of whom gave generous donations; to the master of ceremonies, to the orchestra, and to all those students who cooperated so wholeheartedly in every possible way, in order that as large a contribution as possible might be sent to help those less fortunate than they.

Congratulations go to Miss Lenoir and to Nicole Baudelaire, who so tirelessly gave their time in organizing the ball, and to all those who helped to make it such a success.

LETTER FORUM

Dear Sir,
The fact that the students of Dawson will be asked to elect their new Student's Executive Council in the near future, has been given all together too little publicity.

On February 27, the original nomination dead-line, the present Council saw that there was a definite lack of nominations for the various positions on our campus. The Council should have immediately publicized this on the front pages of the "Daily". It should also have called a general meeting of the student body in order to nominate candidates for all positions on the S.E.C.

The only method by which a really representative and democratic Council can be elected is an open and vigorous campaign, in which all candidates are given the opportunity to widely publicize their platforms, and all the students take an active interest by discussing the various views presented, before voting for the men of their choice.

So far, the Student's Council has NOT taken any concrete steps to encourage such an open and vigorous campaign, in the course of which the students would be made familiar with the issues at stake.

The Council has NOT made any real effort to encourage widespread interest in the elections. I am sure, that if such an effort were made, the apparent apathy of the student body would soon be dispelled and many more nominations would be forthcoming.

TO DATE, THE COUNCIL HAS NOT EVEN SEEN FIT TO SET A DEFINITE DATE FOR THE DAWSON ELECTION.

I therefore call on the Student's Council to realize, that in order to have truly democratic elections, the student body as a whole must take an active interest in them. The Council should therefore immediately publicly and actively encourage further nominations and set a definite date for the Election. This date should be well in advance of the date on which the McGill Daily ceases daily publication, so that all candidates can use this, our newspaper, to present their platforms to the citizens of Dawson. Thus, and only thus, can we assure that our next council will represent the will of the majority of students.

Yours, very truly,
George Neuspel.

McGill Faces Gelineau and Ball Important Factors In Crucial Playoff

By TONY DUNCAN

History repeats this Saturday night when for the second year in a row the McGill Redmen and the Varsity Blues play off for the Intercollegiate Hockey Championship at the Forum. Last year the McGill pucksters skated off with a 4-3 victory. This year... anything can happen.

Looking over the season's record by a Queen's team which many Ace Bailey's squad seems to have the edge with two wins over the Campbell clan against one defeat. But the thing about hockey, that keeps the fans packing the rinks for every game is the fact that past performances doesn't mean a thing. A team which has been beaten by 8 goals one night can turn around and trounce the same opponents by 6 goals the next.

Despite the wide publicity given to the Intercollegiate swimming meet, the response has been poor. This is your last chance to get out and do something for your section. The meet starts this morning at 10.00 a.m., just time for you to get out there now. If you can't make it, you can race for time some night next week. How about it, hm?

Varsity for Hockey Championship Saturday MIGOS DOWN DAWSON IN CAGE PLAYOFF

Grid Hopefuls Drill at Gym Under Obeck

Well it's here. The masses were clamoring for some action on the football team before the initial fall practice and Coach Vic Obeck is the man that's going to give it.

Today at five o'clock in the gym, Obeck will meet all those interested in playing football next year and start some form of practice. As it is illegal under C.I.A.U. ruling to commence scrimmage less than one month prior to the team's first league contest, today's workout will be confined to running shoes and basic formations will be run through.

Obeck's plan calls for one workout this week with a step up to two weekly from next week on in. This program calls for an awful lot of football from now until fall and the mentor hopes to have a well-rounded team by the time scrimmages start. Dawson is not neglected. It has been announced that Obeck will meet the Dawson hopefuls next Thursday to line up the available talent there. With the new Dawson plan calling for a three year stay for prospective Engineers the St. John's brigade will play an important part in the Red and White plans.

The above plan is proving to be the beginning of the realization of many students' dreams, a contending McGill football aggregation. Although it is far too early to make any predictions, at least everyone realizes that the best program is being planned for McGill football hopefuls.

McGill Meets Dawson In Floor Hockey Tilt

An all-star McGill floor hockey squad will invade Dawson College tonight to tangle with the "Alkies," champions of the St. John's floor hockey league. The "Alkies" are exponents of rough and tumble play and will provide the Redmen with stiff opposition.

McGill's first string line-up consists of D. Reich, goal; P. Shannon and P. Goddard, defence; D. Rosen; centre; J. L'Esperance and J. Westbrook, wings. Alternates are J. Bourbonniere, E. Lipshitz, C. Hendler, D. MacVidley, S. Winters and H. Lewis.

The team is reminded to be on the first buses going to Dawson, believed to be leaving the Roddick Gates at 6.30 p.m.

JUDO

An interesting contest will be held this Saturday in the Currie Gym, when four strangers from Central Y.M.C.A. will pit their brawn and skill against four of McGill's Judo thugs. These bouts will mark the highlight in this year's Judo season.

Cage Statistics

BY ES 'N' FINK

The McGill Senior Intercollegiate cage squad didn't cop the laurels in this year's activity, but so far have managed to maintain a worthy pace and style of play, as the following Statistical Analysis on the three home games will quite adequately show. Actually, the Red and White crew was victorious in two of the three games, defeating Varsity and Queen's, and dropping a closely-contested struggle to the Purple and White of Western, who, in virtue of their five-game winning streak have clinched the Wilson Cage Trophy for the third successive time.

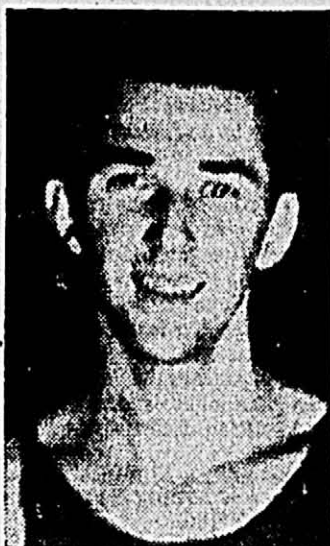

FINAL SCORES

In the final score department the Redmen showed up strongly, pasting the Varsity Blues and the Tricolour quintets 39-24 and 43-35 respectively. The single loss was sustained at the hands of the powerful Mustang five by a slim five-point margin, 41-36. A comparison of the shots on the basket on the part of the local squad and their opponents for the three games, reveals that the latter registered a total of 185 shots while the Davies-coached crew accounted for 188.

A breakdown of these total shots:

Into individual games is as follows: (1) Varsity 54, McGill 50; (2) McGill 52, Western 49; (3) McGill 86, Queen's 82.

In the two victories, McGill showed a superior brand of ball, while against Western an analysis becomes most revealing—the Redmen took 3 more shots than the Mustangs yet only succeeded in garnering as many field goals as the latter, 15. Again, in free throws, Western scored 11 points out of 15 personal fouls registered against McGill, while the local cagers notched only 6 out of 12 personal fouls charged to their opponents. Davies' lads were apparently "off" in this game as Lew agreed "We can't even get a break in our own home town."

George Davidson

FIELD GOALS—28%
Confirming the remainder of our analysis to the McGill team only, we find that of a total of 188 shots attempted by the squad, 49 were good, for a 26% average. In the free throw department, a glance at the table appearing below will indicate that out of 38 attempts, the team made 20 of these, representing a 52% average. At the same time, the "Bad Boys" registered a total of 31 personal fouls against the squad.

Dawson Holds Sports Jamboree At St. John's Gymnasium Tonight

Thursday night will see the Dawson Drill Hall come to life when their eighth and final Athletics Night gets under way at eight o'clock. Dawson is going "all out" for this affair and it promises to be the highlight of the season.

MCGILL COEDS

The entire will be the arrival of the McGill Coeds, which should prove a delightful appetizer for any male. Arrangements have been made for the Coeds' transportation, and it is hoped that the girls will not let their brothers at St. John's down.

The main course will be the name implies be composed of athletics. The Dawson Senior Basketball team will present a large part of the entertainment when it clashes with Sir George Williams in an exhibition tilt. Doubleheader For Hoopsters This Weekend

The McGill cagers will entrain this weekend for what would be normally called the suicide trip but this year with Western already having the bunting packed away there is nothing to kill. However, Davies' doodlers will try to end their action-packed season with a twin killing by tripping both Varsity and Western.

For those cage enthusiasts the column at the left will pretty well tell the story how our heroes fared individually, and as for their standing the Redmen are all square after four contests. There are no injuries on the squad and the usual regulars will trot out against the Blues and the Mustangs. This includes George "Flick" Davidson, who is well up in the league scoring lists, Bud Fraser, Sammy Roth, Kenny Hoyle and Bob Duford. Backing up these stalwarts, Davies will be able to count on Ken Taylor, Meyer Bloom, Manny Shacter, Bob Moffat and Frank Kaszas.

The Blues from Toronto, who went down to a 39-35 defeat here in the season opener are no soft touches. They have a lot of scoring punch in dead eye Harry Mayzell and great defensive strength in Wally Zeaton and Colin Cranham.

The Purple and White, Western boys, with championship already sewn up will definitely be a menace on their home floor. Metras' boys tripped the Redmen 41-35 in Montreal and Davidson et al will have to go some to pull out a victory. Western will floor the two loop leading scorers in Al Scorgie and Bob Phibbs, while the rest of the Mustangs are a well-rounded team.

Intermediates Play Georgians In Cage Tilt

McGill's Intermediate cage squad hooks up with Georgians in the final round of the playoffs to determine the champions of the M.B.L. Intermediate College Section. The game will take place on the Central Y court tonight, play getting underway at 8.30 p.m.

The championship will be decided on a two-game, total-point basis, the second tilt to be played at the St. Arthur Currie gym on Monday. The Redmen swept through the semi-finals, easily defeating a weaker Macdonald College quintet. Georgians tripped a favored University of Montreal team in their semi-final round and are sure to offer a tough combination to beat.

Elo, Dikofsky and Beaugrand will be the boys to watch for McGill. They, along with the rest of the squad, pack a great scoring wallop and they like nothing better than sinking set-shots from all parts of the floor. Hodges, Lanier, Murray, Dougherty and Hayward comprise the rest of the Red and White aggregation and should come through with a victory tonight.

Intramural Basketball Finals Tonight at Gym

The Intramural basketball season will come to a close this evening when Phys Ed 1 and Comm. IIA clash in the final match to decide the league championship. Comm. IIA reached the finals last night when they downed Med III 30-15. Tommy Bridel was the big gun for the winners with 22 points while Crinich contributed 13.

Victors Too Strong For Somers' Crew Taylor, Kaszas Star

By SCOOP PEARL

"That was a poor game that our team played last night, but we hope to have the crew smoothened out for the next playoff game," revealed a perspiring "Red" Somers in the locker room after the opening encounter of a current Migo-Dawson playoff series.

"We'll take 'em in the next two games," came a shout from the shower room, following the newly-appointed mentor's comment.

That was the feeling in the Dawson College camp last evening following the St. John's crew's opening game in a current two-out-of-three Senior Montreal Basketball League series, in which a superior Migo aggregation overran a weak-checking Red and Blue quintet by a 56-26 count at the Currie Gym. The reorganized Dawsonites showed sporadic outbursts of brilliancy, but the consistent and accurate shooting of the Malis-coached Shirimen paid off in a one-sided victory.

KASZAS-TAYLOR

Lanky Frank Kaszas and Kenny Taylor spearheaded the Dawson offensive display, potting a combined nineteen points, with the former playing a good defensive game as well and wishing the netting for ten markers. Guards Norm Segalowitz and Cy Strolowitch each sank eleven points, while Ron Wilson received nine to his credit. The Dawsonites also pulled out a budding recruit in the person of "Mac" Zunder, who has been wearing the toga of the Intermediates the past season. While he only sank two markers, the 17-year prospect showed that he is to be reckoned with in future play.

The Migos drew first blood with a Strolowitch basket at the 15-second mark, and then proceeded to amass a 14-0 count in the first ten minutes as a barrage of shots as Messrs. Wilson, Morein and Strolowitch hit their mark. Kaszas sank a free throw at the ten-minute mark to bring the score to 14-1 but a renewed Migo offensive brought the halftime score to 28-8.

This will be the last open meeting of the S.L.C. for this term, and the invitation to attend it is again cordially extended to all McGill students.

POLITICAL EC. CLUB

Professor Phillip Vineberg of the Department of Economics will be the guest speaker at the closing meeting of the Political Economy Club to be held next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the Union Reading Room.

Professor Vineberg, a McGill graduate in Arts and Law, and a former Economic Consultant to the Dominion Government, will speak on "Economics and the Wartime Prices and Trade Board." His topic will discuss just how economic theory learned in the classroom can be applied within the existing institutional framework of our society.

The meeting will also be for the purpose of holding elections for the new executive.

The practice of having the horse of a deceased military officer led in the funeral procession is a survival of the ancient custom of sacrificing a horse at the burial of a warrior.

Number of Scholarships To Foreign Students Raised

From Europe, from South America, from India, China, Turkey and Egypt students have been sent on scholarships to study at McGill in the past ten years. Some have been sent by the governments of their own countries, others by private organizations, and still others by taking advantage of grants made by McGill.

The number of students in the last group is expected to increase next term, as the University is offering a number of scholarships to students from Allied European countries that were invaded during the war. Details have not been made public yet, but a day's mail in the Administration offices brings letters of application from a half dozen nations.

The Turkish Government has sent a number of students to study engineering at McGill. They took degrees in Mining and Metallurgical Engineering in 1942 and 1943. Some entered with advanced standing due to previous study in Europe, and two reached Montreal by devious routes, escaping from Belgium as the Germans invaded. Several did post-graduate work at American universities, one man publishing a research paper on the chromite deposits of his own country. All these men are under contract to work for the Turkish Government for five years after their return to Turkey.

India too has sent men to study engineering and applied science at McGill. The Indian Government is subsidizing graduate students in water power, engineering, pulp and paper, and agricultural chemistry. The first group came last summer.

and more expected, including people sent by the Tata Foundation, a trust established to give such scholarships by an Indian millionaire of that name.

The Egyptian government plans a similar program of scholarships for advanced study on this continent, and will send one or two students to McGill.

China has sent numbers of students to study in Great Britain and the Dominions under rather different circumstances. After the Boxer Rebellion at the turn of the century, she was forced to pay Britain an indemnity. This was refunded to her, on the condition that she use it to educate some of her people in British universities. Universities in the British Isles were inaccessible during the war, so a number of Chinese students were sent to McGill. One of them is now working for a Ph. D. in Zoology.

Chile has offered McGill three exchange scholarships very recently. Similar offers have come from South America in the past, and a number of South Americans have studied at McGill. It has been pointed out that a year's scholarship to South America might be valuable for a graduate student permitted to do a year of study elsewhere. South Americans holding an M.D. degree have come here to do research in endocrinology and other fields.

Thus, in the past decade McGill has become more cosmopolitan than it was before, and, hopefully, this tendency may be expected to continue in these next years.

Amherst Swim Team Says "Thank McGill" for Hospitality

The Swimming Team of Amherst College, Mass., expressed grateful thanks to McGill students for the hospitality they received here recently. Journeying to Montreal on Feb. 15 they took a well earned victory from the home team, and were fêted at Athletics Night.

In their newspaper, "The Amherst Student", the following article appeared:

"Friday afternoon saw fifteen of us bumping our way over the Hamp Road far from happy at the prospect of a nine hour trip north through the snow-bound valley, but led by Co-captain Lew Ball and his squeeze-box we sang our weary way to Montreal. Disembarking, we plowed our way through the snowdrifts to the McGill campus, still singing. It was only the stern brow of Coach Tug Kennedy that proved that strict training rules were in observance, and less habitants could only shrug their shoulders as we sang our way to bed. Obviously the gendarmes were reluctant to let us pass, but international amity prevailed and we at last reached our lodgings.

"Saturday morning found us on a spree of buying like so many housewives on the day before Christmas. Argyle socks, at two bucks a throw and bales of four dollar cable-knit sweaters fell before the all conquering dollar. Tug Kennedy, after waiting out the whole war for a genuine Saskatchewan bruyere, was finally able to get his hands on the object of his search. It was not until poor Tug had passed his last franc across the border, did he find that his prize was made not only in the good old U.S.A. but in Springfield, Mass.

U.B.C. Announces Slavonic Courses

Many new and interesting courses in the Faculty of Arts and Science for the 1947-48 session were announced by the President's office of the University of British Columbia.

In Slavonic Studies, four entirely new courses are scheduled: "Basic Polish," "Russian Second Course" and "Culture of the Slavonic Peoples." It is believed that U.B.C. is the first university in Canada to offer a course in Polish.

In English a new course on the "History of the Theatre" will be given as an expansion of the working drama commenced last year. Two courses in Canadian History—"History of French Canada" and "History of Canadian Defence"—are among the four additions to the curriculum of the History Department.

Among the new Physics courses to be given include "Introduction to Nuclear Physics and Cosmic Rays," "Beta-rays Spectroscopy," "Quantum Theory of Wave Fields and Elementary Particles" and "Geophysics."

has formed a close tie with McGill, as is evidenced by the fact that Amherst's swimming team is the first American squad to cross the border. The whole team was overwhelmed by the hospitality of the Canadians and already plans are on foot to return the generous compliment.
